6:00 PM	Evening Service and all-church prayer time
7:00 PM	Wednesday Evening Bible study & children's programs

NOTE WORTHY—4/28/24

- Today, we have communion and a fellowship meal after the service. For the meal, we are having a baked potato bar. The baked potatoes will be ready (Thanks, Christina Bearce!), and whatever toppings you brought will be on the table. Everyone is welcome to join us. We will not have a 6:00 PM service.
- In the mid-week service, we are studying II Kings. Elisha is a major character. This week, on Wednesday, Pastor Wright will cover II Kings 6 (the axe head, Arameans, & anger). The teen and kids' clubs meet during our study, so make plans for the whole family to attend.
- The Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival is in full swing this week. Be sure to invite people to our services - we enjoy our guests.
- Next Sunday (5th), Patch Junior is singing for the morning service. We also have a mission trip after the AM service and Pastor Rogers would like to have a "quick sign-up time" for all those who would like to help with Vacation Bible School. There will be a Deacons and Trustees meeting after the 6:00 PM service.
- June 14, we have reserved 30 tickets for "Daniel" at Sight and Sound Theatre in Lancaster. We will leave the church at noon and be back close to midnight. Check your schedule and join us if you can. Tickets in the group rate are $79 per person.
- For the last few years, we have divided the grounds into zones, and people have volunteered to mow. If you are interested in helping, let either Anthony Springer or Pastor Wright know.
- The AED here on the premises has come to the end of its life. The battery is beeping (dying), and they are no longer making a replacement. If you have any resources where we could get assistance or a better price, let someone on staff know.
- Academy New and Notes
  - * Thank you for your help with the Picnic with Parents on Friday.
  - * Monday-Friday, Academy Senior week @ the Wilds in NC
  - * Saturday (May 4), ODACS Jr. & Sr. High track meet (Richmond)

Vocations and Vocations, by Kevin Bauder

The Reformers erected the doctrine of calling in reaction to the Romanist distinction between clergy and laity. At the time, Catholics recognized only two vocations: the calling to consecration (which typically involved joining an order) and the calling to ordination (priesthood). In other words, monks and priests had a vocation; other people did not. Over against this distinction, the Reformers insisted that God calls all Christians. Their vocation is whatever station enables believers to demonstrate God’s love by serving others. In the Protestant view of vocation, ministers are called—but so are bakers, farmers, shopkeepers, and tradesmen.

The Protestant view of vocation grows out of 1 Corinthians 7:17-22. In this passage, vocation refers primarily to God’s calling of the individual to salvation. That is the first and highest calling for any Christian—to be a child of God, placing His character on display in the world, working out our salvation. Paul’s point in this passage and its surrounding context is that every lawful station of life (marriage, singleness, slavery, freedom, circumcision, uncircumcision) provides the opportunity to do just that. We are to use whatever station in which we find ourselves for God’s glory. The Reformers’ doctrine of vocation—the Protestant doctrine of vocation—is really the Pauline and biblical doctrine of vocation.
